AMERICA, not only as it contains a very conſiderable portion of the known world, but in every other reſpect, may be deemed an important object of hiſtorical inveſtigation. Its firſt diſcovery arreſted the attention of mankind; an attention which ſeems every day growing more ardent, from its increaſing ſplendor and progreſſive acquiſitions of power and importance.

It has furniſhed employment for numerous writers, who have engaged on this field of ſcientific controverſy with various ſucceſs. An arrangement of ſo many volumes in chronological order, it is hoped, will have its uſe, not only in perpetuating ſmaller tracts, which might otherwiſe have been neglected or forgotten, but by furniſhing better and more eaſy means of information to future hiſtorians.

The preſent compilation originated in accident. A gentleman, of the Editor's acquaintance, in America, propoſed to himſelf the compilation of a hiſtory of that country, for which purpoſe, it was neceſſary to poſſeſs a knowledge of all that had been previouſly written upon the ſubject; and the Editor of theſe ſheets, having been for ſome years in the habit of intereſting himſelf in every publication that related to America, was conſulted upon the occaſion. Hence proceeded the attempt to acquire that knowledge; and (by a very natural gradation) the preſent publication, with the hope of reimburſing the expences of the purſuit.

The Editor is conſcious of many defects, which he muſt truſt to future efforts of his own, (or what is as much his wiſh) to the more ſucceſsful labors of others, to amend. The preſent volume was compiled without aſſiſtance, aſſiſtance, and under a complication of diſadvantages, which it is however unneceſſary to particularize; but this publication would certainly have been ſuppreſſed, if the Editor had been acquainted with any other of a ſimilar nature, that held forth that information upon the ſubject which he knows to be much wanted, and which he hopes the preſent volume will be found in a great degree to ſupply.

AN

NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA.

IN all abſolute governments, Genius has been almoſt uniformly obſerved to deſpond and droop*; ſhe is a plant of the moſt tender texture, that requires to be ſedulouſly watched in infancy, and can be raiſed to maturity by little leſs than the care and anxiety of pa-

* To this poſition, if it be objected that the beſt Roman writers flouriſhed under Auguſtus, and that they were nearly equalled by the French under Louis the XIVth, it may be replied, that the objections are few; and it is a received maxim, that the paucity of exceptions ſerves only to confirm a rule.

rental tenderneſs. An occaſional flower may indeed bud forth in the ſhade, but every encouragement is neceſſary to expand her productions to perfection. If neceſſity (as ſome contend) is the mother of literary fame*, Liberty (at leaſt) participates the claim of parentage. Sheltered under her wing, ſhe has ever been obſerved to flouriſh, and to tower the moſt envied and arduous heights; while abandoned by her foſter parent, ſhe has degenerated into folly or frivolity, and ſunk into annihilation with the utmoſt rapidity of deſcent. The preſent ſtate of literature in South America will ſerve at leaſt as one inſtance to illuſtrate this poſition. —It produces nothing conducive to the good or happineſs of mankind; and its preſent ſterility will probably remain as long as the people are content to continue under bondage. Two fatal antidotes here operate to retard all ſcientific progreſs, (namely,) "The "Inquiſition," and "The want of the liberty of the "preſs."

* ——————————— Venter,
Magiſter artis ingenique largitor.
PERSIUS.

That

That many valuable works of wit and humour prove abortive, or die in embrio, for want of this liberty, in one inſtance, and from dread of eccleſiaſtic tyranny in the other, cannot be queſtioned. It may ('tis true) be attended with ſome diſadvantages, but where throughout the boundaries of nature, is abſolute unadulterated good? Every poiſon has its antidote, and, it is to be feared, moſt human advantages their attendant inconveniences. Gold has its alloy—licentiouſneſs is the alloy of liberty; and as it gives currency to the one, it may lend a zeſt to the other—and not without its uſe—as the human paſſions are ordained by the omniſcient author of Being to be the teſt of virtue, marking out our moral boundaries by the variety of light and ſhade, and giving to virtue both its ſtruggles and its triumphs.

The advantages ariſing from the liberty of the preſs, like a ſelf-evident propoſition, ſtand in no need of proof or illuſtration; they are inſtantaneouſly apparent, from the many uſeful and entertaining productions, which, in our iſland, ſolely owe their birth to it. It has

has been well ſaid, that it is better for the public that a million of monſters ſhould come into the world, (which are ſeen to die as ſoon as born) than that one Hercules ſhould be ſtrangled in the cradle.

Cauſes and effects are ſhewn in the ſtrongeſt and faireſt lights, by the aid of contraſt.

Let us turn (to uſe a metaphor of Junius) from this barren waſte, where no verdure quickens, no ſalutary plant takes root, to a ſoil fertile in every great and every good qualification. Let us examine the ſtate of literature in North America. The elder ſiſter (South America) is decorated with gold; but that gold, fabricated into chains, and as is too commonly the fate of wealth, ſerving only to exclude, what is conducive to happineſs, and to confine what is eſſential to miſery. The younger ſiſter (North America) inured to native poverty, and bred in the tumult of difficulties and danger, has ariſen to fame and diſtinction among nations. Induſtry and perſeverance were the pinions to ſupport ſupport her flight, and heaven-born liberty is ſtill the ſtrongeſt feather in her wing.

North America may want ſome of the fopperies of literature. She boaſts not thoſe dignified literati, who in Europe obtain adulation from the learned paraſite, and applauſe from the uninformed multitude, for purſuits and diſcoveries that terminate in no addition to the real elegancies or conveniencies of living. She may, however, claim the poſſeſſion of all uſeful learning. Science has not only reared her head, but flouriſhes with a degree of vigor in the new world, that threatens to ſurpaſs the old. In the great and uſeful ſcience of politics, the Republic of America is, perhaps, unequalled. Their orators, lawyers, phyſicians, hiſtorians, philoſophers, and mathematicians, may be fairly oppoſed to our moſt ſucceſsful cultivators of ſcience and the liberal arts; and poets have lately put in claims, backed by productions, that evince a very ſlender inferiority. The influence of freedom and independence on the arts (ſays Lord Kaims) is great. Deſpotiſm contracts and degrades the mind; but under the ſhade of Liberty, the human mind expands and exerciſes her powers, in the fulleſt latitude of ſecurity and pleaſure.

In South America, little other knowledge is ſuffered to be propagated, than what is conducive to commercial purpoſes, or tends to encreaſe the ideal enjoyments of unwieldy wealth and falſe greatneſs. In North America, the whole circle of ſcience is occupied by ingenious induſtry, which has, for the moſt part, proved itſelf the ſucceſsful candidate for literary fame. The people of North America have now profeſſors in every art and ſcience, with adequate ſalaries; and whatever they may want to import, men of eminence, in literature, are not of the number.

At the head of their philoſophers and politicians, ſtands the venerable Franklin. In the firſt claſs, the ingenious Lorimer muſt not be forgotten.—In mathematics, the ſelf-taught Rittenhouſe.—In divinity, Weatherſpoone.—In hiſtory, criticiſms, and policy, the modern modern Tacitus, (Payne).—In poetry, Barlowe, Smith, and Ray.—In painting, Weſt.—In law and oratory—How ſhall I enumerate them? Take the firſt claſs. In Georgia, Geo. Walton;—German Baker, in Virginia;—Jennings, in Maryland;—Lewis, Bradford, and Chambers, in Pennſylvania;—Boudinot, in Jerſey;—Hamilton and Bird, in New-York;—Johnſon, in Connecticut; and Parſons, in Maſſachuſetts.

They have ſeized and improved ſome uſeful parts of ſcience, that our public ſeminaries have neglected. They have eſtabliſhed profeſſorſhips of animal magnetiſm and agriculture, and formed ſocieties for the improvement of manufactures and mechanics, commerce, navigation, and policy.

Every body knows the two philoſophical ſocieties that exiſted in Philadelphia, in 1769.—They are now united; and are proceeding, in their literary labors, with renovated ador and ſucceſs.

The Commonwealth of New England have eſtabliſhed a ſociety for the cultivation and promotion of arts and ſciences, of which the intention and deſign are ſtated in the Act of Incorporation, and are as follows, viz.

" To promote and encourage the knowledge and an" tiquities of America, and its natural hiſtory; to de" termine the uſes, to which the various natural pro" ductions of the country may be applied; to promote " and encourage medical diſcoveries, mathematical
" diſquiſitions, philoſophical enquiries and experiments,
" aſtronomical, meteorological, and geographical ob-
" ſervations; and improvements in agriculture, arts,
" manufactures, and commerce; and, in fine, to culti" vate every art and ſcience, which may tend to ad" vance the intereſt, honor, dignity, and happineſs of
" a free, independent, and virtuous people."

The utility of ſuch eſtabliſhments has been fully evinced, by the progreſs of knowledge, ſince their inſtitution.

ſtitution. United labors muſt neceſſarily have greater efficacy, than can poſſibly reſult from the ſeparate efforts of individuals, however ardent or perſevering. Here intellectual induſtry has the ampleſt field for inveſtigation, and genius the wideſt ſphere for the expanſion of all its faculties. In a word, they ſeem to be following the ſteps of the great Lord Bacon, laid down in his "Novum Organum," who compares ſociety to a pillar, compoſed of four parts. Firſt, the baſement, which is agriculture; ſecondly, manufactures; thirdly, commerce; and, fourthly, apex, or the fine arts.—They have erected this pillar, and laid a ſolid agricultural foundation. It has been elevated by commerce, and is ſtrengthening by manufactures, and will ſhortly be adorned by the arts, and ſurrounded by the Muſes, to celebrate its completion.

Literary property is now ſecured in moſt of the States; and the example will ſoon be followed (if it has not been already) by the reſt, having been ſtrongly recommended by Congreſs.

All

All publications of conſequence, in point of ſize and expence, are executed in Europe; and generally in London, Dublin, or Edinburgh.

The people of North America manufacture their own paper, and in ſufficient quantities for home conſumption; but the price of labour is ſtill ſo extremely high, that it ſeldom anſwers to print any works here, except their own laws, pamphlets, and newſpapers, which every ſtate prints in abundance, and in the laſt article of literary utility, it muſt be admitted, they excel. The newſpapers of Maſſachuſetts, Connecticut, Rhode Iſland, Pennſylvania, and Maryland, are unequalled, whether conſidered with reſpect to wit and humour, entertainment or inſtruction. Every capital town on the continent prints a weekly paper, and ſeveral of them have one or more daily papers. In the northern ſtates, they print a few ſchool books, and occaſionally in New-York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, republiſh any tracts not remarkably large, and particularly celebrated; but they are ſeldom well executed. One Bell, a bookſeller in Philadelphia, reprinted Blackſtone's Commentaries; but they are very ill done, and ſell much higher than thoſe imported. Aitken, a printer in Philadelphia, finiſhed an American edition of the Holy Scriptures, which was highly approved, and recommended by a reſolution of Congreſs, and yet he loſt by it very conſiderably. The travels of the Marquis de Chattellux have been lately reprinted at New-York, and ſome few other publications, but they are ill executed, and do not ſell well.

The wages of printers are very great; and progreſſively ſo from the extreme parts of the northern to the ſouthern ſtate. In New Hampſhire, Maſſachuſetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Iſland, journeymen printers have from three to eight dollars per week. In New York, Philadelphia, and Maryland, from five to ten per week; and in Virginia, North and South Carolina, and Georgia, from eight to twenty and twenty-five, according to their merit and ability. Printers are very ſcarce in the ſouthern ſtates.

They

They caſt their own types in various parts of the continent, but they are neither ſo good nor cheap as thoſe done in Europe. Great quantities are imported from Glaſgow.

The greateſt bookſellers are in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. Northward of New York, there are none of any conſequence—not even in Boſton; or, ſouthward of Baltimore; not even in Charleſton. The bookſellers throughout the continent are generally ſupplied from one of the above three places, where there are many conſiderable ones, who import largely from Europe, and there are few publications that cannot be purchaſed here, except very heavy and expenſive ones, ofwhich they have none. A ſingle book, of the value of 5l. or 10l. is no where to be found here. They ſell to tranſient cuſtomers at the advance of 50l. and in ſome inſtances, 100 per cent. and their ſales are very great, for it is ſcarce poſſible to conceive the number of readers with which even every little town abounds. The common people are on a footing, in point of literature, rature, with the middle ranks in Europe. They all read and write, and underſtand arithmetic;—almoſt every little town now furniſhes a circulating library.

Books are ſold ſouthward of Maryland, particularly in Virginia and North Carolina, at an extravagant price—not unfrequently at an advance of 200l. per cent.

Law books have the moſt rapid ſale, and that at an exceſſive price. Newnham's Conveyancing ſold, in Philadelphia, for eight and nine guineas per ſet, and were bought up immediately. Bacon's Abridgement (a book, which, with Blackſtone's Commentaries, is highly in repute throughout America) has repeatedly been ſold in North Carolina for 100 hard dollars. They do not, in North Carolina, import from Europe, but purchaſe, at an unreaſonably high price, of the northern bookſellers, and then ſell at an advance of 50, or, in many inſtances, 100l. per cent.—Great quantities of various kinds of produce are conſtantly ſhipped from the Southern States, to Philadelphia and New York, for European books.

Any thing that has relation to the hiſtory of the country, ſells well; and medical books have alſo a rapid ſale.

Whatever is uſeful, ſells; but publications on ſubjects merely ſpeculative, and rather curious than important, and generally ſuch on the arts and ſciences, as are voluminous and expenſive, lie upon the bookſeller's hands. They have no ready money to ſpare for any thing but what they want; and, in literary purchaſes, look for preſent, or future uſe.

Scotch books, like their countrymen, are not much in repute in any part of North America. Engliſh law books, not only on account of their price, but ſize, are not much in demand; the folio being inconvenient for the lawyers to take on their circuits.

Iriſh

Iriſh books (like Iriſhmen) have, in every thing, a preference throughout this country; and the ſale of their books, thoſe on law in particular, is extremely great.

The demand for foreign literature is inconſiderable. It is very little for French books, and ſtill leſs for Italian, Spaniſh, and Portugeſe. German books are, in ſome degree, an exception, for they ſell in parts inhabited by the Dutch; but principally books of devotion and ſchool books. They have very few men of literature among them here. When a Dutchman is not at prayers, he is either at work or aſleep.

The French have taken uncommon pains to introduce their language and literature, but without ſucceſs. Their principal intercourſe has been (from motives of political intrigue) with thoſe high in office, and generally with thoſe in and about Congreſs, ſome of whom ſpeak French, and read French books; but their number is comparatively ſmall. The common people, in the proportion of twenty to one, ſtill prefer old Engliſh times, dwell with pleaſure on what they term, their Engliſh anceſtors, ſpeak only the Engliſh tongue, heartily curſe—French gibberiſh and politics, and continue ſtill to read and admire old Engliſh books.

The ſtate of literature is at a very low ebb in Nova Scotia and New Brunſwick. Few read at all, except profeſſional men, and the gentlemen of the army, who are ſupplied by a ſmall circulating library in Haliſax. Some few books are imported by the merchants, and ſold in common, with other goods, at their ſtores; but the whole province does not afford a bookſeller's ſhop larger than is to be found in one of our ſmalleſt country towns in England. The middle and lower order of people do not read; their time is neceſſarily occupied in the cultivation of an obdurate and unpropitious ſoil.

The ſame obſervations apply to Canada. The French peaſantry are all Catholics, and uſe no books but religious ones. There is one miſerable bookſeller in Quebec, bec, who is ſupported by publiſhing a weekly gazette in French and Engliſh, (which, however, is neither French nor Engliſh,) and another in Montreal, ſupported on the ſame terms. In the Weſt Indies, every gentleman almoſt takes out his own library with him; and what books may be wanted are generally ſold in the ſtores of merchants who import them from England with their other goods, although the capital of each of the iſlands has one perſon who calls himſelf a bookſeller, who binds, deals in ſtationary, and keeps a few books, ſuch as he judges are moſt in demand, which he ſells at an advance of 70 and 100l. per cent.
